Last night Mrs. Elselkorn went to bed as usual with her son in her arms. She woke twice during the night to feed it and it was then all right. When Eiselkorn woke up this morning at 6.30 o'clock and called his wife to have her get his breakfast before he should go to work, he noticed that his child's face was blue.

He caught it up and found that the little body was cold. Then he saw that the baby was dead. He showed it to his wife and she went into hysterics. Eiselkorn called in Dr. I. H. Schlessinger, of No. 216 Madison street, who said that the child had undoubtedly been smothered by the mother while she slept.

smothered by the mother while blest.

When it was found that the baby was lifeless noises were made in an endeavor to restore it to life. This is a custom that is much practised among some nationalities. A neighbor of the afflicted parents suggested that plates be thrown to the floor, it being believed that successive and loud crashes would have the desired result. The smashing of crockery and walling and crying had no effect, for the taby was really dead.

A Hundred Thousand Yards of 12½c PRINTED DIMITIES At 8 Cents a Yard!

A NOTHER startling offering of Cotton Goods is presented today. Seventy of the brightest and most attractive patterns printed on the best dimity cloth ever made to sell at 121/2c make up the collection we present today at Eight Cents a Yard!

In fact, the designs are of the character that you would expect to find only in twenty-five-cent dimities. They include dainty figured stripes, medallion figured stripes, and classical figures and stripes of colors on white grounds, black and white figures and stripes on tinted grounds, figured stripes of white on black, and floral designs on white grounds.

Both in quality of the fabric, and attractiveness of designs, this offering has never been equalled before at the beginning of a season.

The same cloth exactly, with patterns no more choice, will cost 12% when these are gone. Today 8c a Yardl Assortments of the Batistes and Percales that went on sale last Friday are still complete. One large operator tells us that it is disastrous and unnecessary to sell such beautiful Batistes at 10c a yard. But they'll be gone in a jiffy; and we always sell goods as cheaply as we buy them. Certainly it is a remarkable

The Percales at 10c are equally noteworthy. A saving of two-and-a-half cents a yard is quite extraordinary on such staple, perfect goods.
